MILITARY NOTES.

The intelligence that the authorities at Albany are ng the propriety of dispanding the cavalry tional Guard entirely, or at least of consolig it into one regiment, will doubtless be re-i with supreme satisfaction by every member militia who has the interest of the service at Some time ago the after inefficiency of this ch of the National Guard was pointed out in columns, and the late annual inspection owed quite plainly that the men were badly off-red, and that discipline in the regiments was a quite foreign to them. It would certainly re-no great research to find out the real cause the utter want of system, the absence of soldierly ring-in fact, of every essential that goes to make mand thorough and efficient—which at present terize the cavairy of the First division, and division commander cannot hold himself rely blameless for its deplorable condition. should have long ago made some arrange-nt by which the officers of the various regilisgrace of the late inspection was directly of ficers' own making, for had they known what ary precision and knowledge required of them would have . been under control and to be continued, General Shaler, or rather the Commander-in-Chief himself, should see to it that ers are schooled in the first rudiments of a er's education before they are allowed to take nmand of even a corporal's guard. Indeed, the ard of Examiners appointed some time ago would have their hands full now if some of the command-ants of the cavairy regiments did their duty by reporting the officers whom they think deficient, and might, in more than one instance, with perfect propriety, report themselves deficient at the same time. If there must be cavalry in the National Guard, by all means let there be but one regiment, and that one of well drilled soldiers.

There is a subject which it is to be hoped General McQuade will take due notice of when he sends his report to Albany concerning the inspections, and that is the ununiformality of the muskets used by the various regiments. Those belonging to the Twonty-second regiment, for instance, are probably two or three pounds lighter than those carried by the Seventh, besides being much better adapted to quick handling. Why not introduce the existing style of the regular array musket? It is considered one of the most symmetrical and available pieces in the world. The fact of its being a breech loader ought of itself to hasten its introduction among all the State troops: The idea that if it wore adopted the existing mannal would have to be somewhat changed is preposteous as an argument; for when a musket needs no ramrod the loading motions, as far as the ramrod is concerned, can easily be dispensed with. Will deneral McQuade please make a note of this?

far as the ramod is concerned, can easily be dispensed with. Will General McQuade please make a note of this?

The visit of the Providence Light Infantry last week was productive of a great deal of good feeling between them and our cry regiments—that is, between those whom they met at the reception in the Fourteenth street armory and during their trip to the public institutions. There was one drawback to the general pleasure of the latter occasion, however, and the Bohemians were at the bottom of it. Some-how or another they got wind of a big dinner or a collation about the same way that an ill-fed dog does of a julcy plece of meat in passing a butcher's shop-by the strong sense of scent made doubly intense by long fasting. Several of these down-in-the-neel, ill-mannered curs got on board the boat on the Blackwell's island trip, and succeeded, as they always do, in disgusting everybody with whom they came in contact, but especially the gentlemen of the press who represented the three fault of the whole thing any directly with the Twenty-second regiment officers. They should have made every mother's son of them show their written credentials as to their being regular journalists, specially invited or sent to the festivity, and, in default of such documents, they should have been treated a imposters and sicked overboard. Indiscriminate admission at military baits, receptions, &c., of fellows who chaimed to represent leading journais became so positive a nuisance last winter that the regular members of the press seddom or never made themselves known, and refused to go into the committee rooms for fear of being confounded with the imposters. Reporters, in attending military receptions or other like occasions, attend for business purposes excusively. So whenever you hear an individual claiming to be a member of the press kicking that is not seated as well as might be, set him down as a frand and act accordingly.

The appointment of the Board of Examiners without the bower of being able to compel the appear.

is not seated as well as might be, set him down as a frand and act accordingly.

The appointment of the Board of Examiners without the power of being able to compet the appearance before them of any officer whom they would have reason to believe incompetent was a great mistake. They are forced to wait until a colonel or some superior officer takes it upon himself to send one of his subordinates before the board. The result was that the board after its first sitting adjourned without doing anything simply because accordy was made to appear before them to be examined.

HOUNES, ROOMS, &C., WANTED.

There will soon be an election in the Fourth brigade first division to fill the vacancy made by the resignation of General Aspinwall. There are several candidates for the position, but the most prominent additional configuration of General Aspinwall. There are several additional configuration of General Aspinwall. There are several candidates for the position, but the most prominent additional configuration of General Aspinwall. There are several additional configuration is one of doubt about the fact that, if the brigade officers look more to the actual merit and faithful services in the past of those who aspire to the single star shoulder straps, that he will win the prize. He has been ideatified with the National Guard for over thirty sears, and has always been known in the First division as one of its most energetic members whenever there was any uphill work to be done to further its welfare. The candidates opposed to him, only one of whom has the slightest chance of getting ahead of him, are, comparatively speaking, young in the service, and can well afford to bide their time in years to come for promotion. From present indications there will be acknowled any opposition to Colonel Lux's election. In this connection it might be suggested that if in the election of not only brigaded but regiments at and company commandants in the militia more regard were had for the "bare merits" of candidates than for their social induced to the militia more regard were had for the "bare merits" of candidates than for their social induced to the strand of regimental and company commandants in the militia more regard were had for the "bare mèrits" of candidates than for their social influence or wealth the service would be much benefted, and many companies that are now rather snabby affairs, in a military point of view, be of more credit to the National Guard than they really are.

THE RIZARELLI BROTHERS.

These marvellous artists, who are recognised by public of this and all countries as a THE PIRST OF ALL GYMNASTS, have been sugaged for the past four weeks in percharming as have been singaged for the past four weeks in problemsing an rehearding an ENTIRELY NEW AND PERILOUS ACT, deatined to immortalize their name in the records of gymnatic exploits. This starting and daring performance will for one of the features of TAMMANY. OCT. 18, 1869.

THIS (MONDAY) EVENING, OCT. 18, 1869, THIS (MONDAY) EVENING, OCT. 18, 1869, the two brothers take a position on a novel addition to L'Ecole Gymnase, comprising L'Echell Perficuse and the Parallel Horisontal Har, the whole at the height of the ceiling. These two bars are fourteen feet apart After performing several starting and interesting feats of L'Echelle Ferileuse, such as leaping from rung to rung, the skipping one, then two, and so on, backward and forward they each leap to the parallel bars, upon which they accomplish several daring feats, and one in particular, which sha entirely eclipse anything of the kind ever before attempted but we shall leave our patrons to judge of its unreits. Durin this entire performance a net wit be spread in order to ban in all fears or disquistone from the minds of the spectators. They finally go in a rotation to a swinging trapezo, from which they jump forty feet to a single rope and descend.

THERE IS NO PERCEBERNI R DARING OR SKILL to this last and, and is will be performed without hes, as it
